The Economy of Kosovo is a transition economy. Kosovo was the poorest province of the former Yugoslavia with a modern economy established only after a series of federal development subsidies in 1960s and 1970s. During the 1990s abolition of province's autonomous institutions followed by poor economic policies, international sanctions, little access to external trade and finance, and ethnic ...5. Conclusion. In the case of Transnistria, privatization processes involving key outside players provided a unique opening for elite defection by sparking a causal chain of re-evaluation of economic interests eventually leading to the decision to defect from the incumbent's coalition. A kolkhoz (Russian: колхоз, IPA: (kɐl'kɔz), a contraction of колхозное хозяйство, collective ownership, коллективное хозяйство) was a form of collective farm in the Soviet Union. Kolkhozes existed along with state farms or sovkhoz. These were the two components of the socialized farm sector that began to emerge in Soviet agriculture after the October Revolution of 1917 ... Weapons are manufactured by corporations, but much of the expense is funded by U.S. taxpayers. In addition, the U.S. government is a major promoter of the sale of weapons to other countries, and through its Departments of Defense, State, and Commerce, probably has more than 6,000 employees spending $400 million a year to promote weapons exports. - Facilitating Foreign Participation In Privatization
