I have a coworker, Jane, who deals with conflict in strange and alienating ways. Recently, she's been giving people the silent treatment on and off. It makes meetings tense, and she tends to keep it up for days or weeks at a time before spontaneously deciding she's speaking to her coworkers ...There is currently one constant element across all markets: Change. Change is accelerating and impacting us or our teams very hard. When you and your team are able to better cope with all the changes, the pressure drops, you feel less overwhelmed and more in control again.

Finance Manager. Harris Hill is working with an amazing children's charity to find a motivated Finance Manager to join their team. Duties will include: Key responsibilities Auditing or end of year experience in a charity (SORP) setting Ability to communicate financial information clearly to non-financial managers, and support managers in the process of developing their financial skills ...A good example of that would be a move into the area adjacent to its current flat-pack kitchen range, and into semi-custom kitchens. This is — in a phrase popular at the moment — a "highly-fragmented" market, where consolidation could see major benefits emerge. - Managing Difficult People : Proven Strategies To Deal With Awkwardness In Business Situations
