Parish Priest: Father Michael McGivney and American Catholicism, Douglas ...Life. Corbinian was born and baptized as Waldegiso at Châtres, near Melun, in Frankish territory. He was named after his father, who may have died when Corbinian was an infant. Soon after his father's death, his mother Corbiniana renamed Waldegiso to "Corbinian," after herself. Nothing else is known of his childhood. In G.K. Chesterton's story "The Queer Feet," Father Brown says: A crime is like any other work of art. Don't look surprised; crimes are by no means the only works of art that come from an infernal workshop. But every work of art, divine or diabolic, has one indispensable mark — I mean ... - Milestones: Memoirs 1927-1977
